2020-11-15 02:28:01	Gauteng		Yes I do	establishing an Intelligence Division of the Police Service	A substantial amount of our violent street crime is organised by criminal syndicates - with corrupt police officers who are either involved, or turn a blind eye. An intelligence division will be the best way to combat these syndicates and corrupt police networks. Furthermore, an intelligence division can drive meaningful change in the way police cases are networked and analysed. Which will ease the polices admin workload, and improve the polices ability to track cases across the country.	Shaun

2020-10-28 08:09:34	Western Cape		Yes I do	establishing an Intelligence Division of the Police Service	The South African Police Service is pathetic. They need help. They cannot spell or do not even have good attitudes towards catching criminals. They act as if there's nothing they can do to catch criminals because they have left the crime scene. When you go to police stations, they are sitting around and suddenly all go into their offices to avoid helping citizens which is their job. They are so unfit and cannot even run a mile before giving up. They need better training, in terms of their education and training. If they cannot pass tests of intelligence and stop their corrupt ways, they need to be fired because they aren't helping anyone with their uselessness.	Craig

	2020-10-19 14:13:10	KwaZulu-Natal		Yes I do	establishing an Intelligence Division of the Police Service	Our police force is full of crooked cops who abuse and misuse their so called power that comes with the badge. citizens get harassed as police use us to fill quotas via fines n such whereas the criminals do as they please and get away with it because it will just be an unsolved case...ive seen them turn away people who come to police stations to report a theft ...told them straight its no use opening a case because they wont get them.unless they can make an arrest there and then they will not as they say have vans available...they wont have any interest. 	2020-10-28 11:23:52	Gauteng		Yes I do	integrity testing of recruits	I feel that better screening for better candidates who are passionate what they do for the community. Not going into the force because of the perks or salary. Most of the police force are rude, have no knowledge of their duties. Going to the police station, they are not helpful at all, it seems that most of them are too busy on their phones talking to family or friends where they should be assisting. Sitting at the front desk and contemplating and staring and wonder should i assist or not. Alot needs to be done at the front desk. Most of are not interested in their jobs at all. A clean sweep is required in order to maintain good governance within the police force.	Jayne
	2020-10-28 11:03:57	Gauteng		Yes I do	integrity testing of recruits	In my previous research, i have long stated that there needs to be more intense integrity testing of recruits as well as in depth background checks. One cannot simply rely on criminal checks, as one may be deviant and not have a criminal history as they were never caught.	Richard
	2020-10-28 09:53:19	Gauteng		Yes I do	integrity testing of recruits	SAPS is rife with police officers who are rude, corrupt and brutal in nature. They believe that they are not accountable for their actions. At present, IPID is toothless and not independent. An intelligence division would go a long way to sift out the above shortcomings. It should also sift out future recruits to SAPS who may be a liability to the State. I believe that the rot sets in at an early of a police officers career.	Arnold
	2020-10-28 09:42:51	Gauteng		Yes I do	integrity testing of recruits	Due to the level of ROT in the police, perhaps it is time to delete all and start from scratch with much higher levels of requirements for candidates. The "It takes a criminal to catch a criminal" approach has just created a rotten, corrupt, criminal police force. CRL+ALT+DEL and re-install is what is required.	Brian

	2020-10-28 08:14:57	Gauteng		Yes I do	integrity testing of recruits	We need a police force that has integrity and does the work it is supposed to be trained to do, not seeing how much they can receive in bribes to loose docketts or terrorises the public.	Lorna
	2020-10-28 07:56:31	Gauteng		Yes I do	integrity testing of recruits	The police have a shocking reputation. They do not represent law abiding behavior. We need police who protect the collective people and instill safety and confidence. Testing and having tighter control of who becomes a police member may inhibit corrupt officials working for the government. We do need a division to police the police.	Nicole

	2020-10-27 14:41:28	Gauteng		Yes I do	integrity testing of recruits	The police must recruit honest decent people with the attitude that they are there to serve and help the public	Paul
	2020-10-21 10:55:41	Gauteng		Yes I do	integrity testing of recruits	This testing should extend to the entire police force on an ongoing basis as is the case with private security companies. Mandatory annual polygraph testing will root out corruption.	Paul
	2020-10-21 07:46:17	Gauteng		Yes I do	integrity testing of recruits	Alignment of the act with outcome of constitutional court cases is a legal requirement and amendments must be made accordingly. I guess it all starts with the people you recruit in the lower ranks which will over time work their way up and one day become the new leaders. the concern is the current culture in the police that will teach the new recruits. the integrity testing is something that must be done through out the career and on all levels within the police service.	Jan-Harm
	2020-10-19 21:17:04	Gauteng		Yes I do	integrity testing of recruits	Integrity testing of the new constables should be approved and implemented. Discipline is down the drain in the South African Police Service.	Phil

	2020-10-18 01:16:35	Gauteng		Yes I do	integrity testing of recruits	Integrity testing is of cardinal importance and must be implemented for all SAPS members, including existing members. Corruption must be rooted out and the services of members with criminal records must be terminated. Community policing must be strengthened and rural protection units must be established with the help and involvement of the local inhabitants.	Michael

	2020-10-12 08:55:47	Gauteng		Yes I do	integrity testing of recruits	The police should start doing the job SA citizens are paying them to do, ie serve and protect without government interference. 	2020-10-10 09:13:14	Gauteng		Yes I do	integrity testing of recruits	Protection of our farmers, our communities is vital and should never based on different political policies. One example: The few token arrests of the EFF with the Clicks debacle...the wilful destruction, damaged property, intimidation, the ongoing incitement of racial hatred, harrassment and violence with impunity...Bad JOKE. Several police vehicles sent to arrest one farmer? Really?? What happened to the police officers who fired shots with live rounds..and the one who drove a police vehicle into a woman and her children..did Justice prevail? NOT as yet...if ever. However, if they are getting paid off by the criminals to look the other way, then that trust breaks down, and the community suffers. 	2020-10-20 18:30:32	KwaZulu- Natal		Yes I do	integrity testing of recruits	Over the last couple years a lot of corruption within the police force of Msunduzi has been caught, but there are still a lot of corruption taking place, not just locally, but broadly among high placed officials. The inefficiency of police services like applying and reapplying for firearm licenses, the time it takes to get your renewed license, etc. is horrendous to put it mildly. The sad truth/fact that those police officers who are trying to do their jobs (and there are many), don't have the means to: either no vehicles, no communications, not enough personnel to go out to incidences, no/very little ammuniton to train with, never mind that they have to put themselves in very dangerous situations at times. They are worse equipped than a lot of criminals are. Lastly the fact that police departments are at times receiving contradictory information from higher ups with regards to how to handle protests, riots, and who they can act against. When they want to act against rioters who belong to a certain political party, they are actually in danger of being reported or acted against, and the rioters go free. Which comes back to corruption within the police force.	Elize

The minister must set the example and must serve the interest of all tribes and cultures. For him/her to understand this, they need to have the knowledge of the tribes and cultures not be biased. Hatred cannot be part of the SAPD and the SAPD must act upon the constitution to defend and uphold the constitution. South Africa is divided and a disaster because of the example set by politicians, the tales they are preaching from political platforms, the SAPD should also monitor and act against all those who wants to devide the nation, who pronounce violence or refer to war, bloodshed or any type of violence, including politicians and ministers. 	2020-11-07 10:43:41	Gauteng		Not fully	establishing an Intelligence Division of the Police Service	My concern is what powers it will have. I agree that all police officers should undergo vetting, including existing senior management. CPF has worked well in some areas in crime prevention by both public and corrupt police officials. Why must gatherings be regulated? Democracy should allow citizens freedom to gather for whatever reason without police intimidation. A major concern is the pending vaccinations. No citizen should be prohibited from normal daily life based on whether they accept a vaccine or not. That is tyranny and a violation of constitutional rights to refuse medical treatment for whatever reason. Under democracy the current regulation for wearing masks is already a violation of democratic freedom, with no medical basis whatsoever, and is actually harmful to our health according to medical experts worldwide. If the public is ignored by government, then government is using power they don't have and should be removed and charged with human rights violations, as should any communistic practice by the police. 	2020-10-26 20:12:15	KwaZulu-Natal		Not fully	establishing an Intelligence Division of the Police Service	While I am in full support of the concept of community policing, my specific concern is around centralizing power. While I would agree that centralizing power does boost efficacy, especially in large organizations. I find it erroneous that this would be mentioned alongside the word community. Given the state of authoritarian state control that we've been in this year, I do not think any South African, not currently in, or affiliated with government, would want more centralization in the police "force", or a larger police intelligence community. I believe that a vertical power structure is contrary to the spirit of the constitution, which embraces a horizontal power structure. If true community policing were the goal, residents would vote for station commanders the same as mayors. Very few people want to live in a lawless country, which is what SA is becoming, if communities elected their own "sheriff" the misguided efficacy desired from centralization would be attained, and associated job apathy at the public level would disappear along with it. With the epiphany that they serve the public, and more specifically the community they are located in, not pictures on the wall of bureaucrats, that come and go. What is evident is that the bureaucrats do not serve the people, or they would not be following a global narrative with regards to this state of disaster. They would of questioned medical advice given by a man, accused of among other things genocide while serving as health minister in his own country of Ethiopia. They would of questioned his financier, who has declared he's "solving over population with vaccines", who lone behold comes with the solution to our problem. I do not see any path this government takes, going anywhere but centralized control, which it seems they are more than happy to hand over to the UN. I can only hope sanity prevails, and along with the constitution, the power remains with the people.	Liam

					The question here must be who exactly will undertake the integrity screening and testing of recruits for the police force? If this screening and testing isn't undertaken by very well qualified professionals in this particular field of work, then this whole exercise will be an utter waste of time and taxpayers money! The existing police force from A to Z also needs to undergo integrity screening and testing and this screening and testing must be undertaken on every member of the police force at least on an annual basis, including polygraph tests as well! Yes, in many other countries all the members of the police force are integrity screened and tested by well qualified professionals on a regular basis, it's been par for the course for a long time there. Are the SAPS really able and capable to undertake integrity screening and testing of all of their members as it needs to be undertaken - with real integrity and trustworthiness? Currently, the SAPS has a very bad reputation here in South Africa and the police are regarded as being very untrustworthy, they are ineffective in combating crime, they definitely do not protect us citizens which is their responsibility and duty to do, they continually misplace or lose valuable case dockets and in so doing often defeat the ends of justice, their response times are far too late at crime scenes and the criminals are long gone by then and so on. Then the best reason the SAPS can come up with for all of these problematic issues is that there are too few SAPS members, they are under-staffed and cannot carry-out all of the police duties when and where it is required! Therefore the South African government needs to sit-up and take note that in order for the SAPS to become more efficient and effective, the SAPS must be granted a bigger budget to do so, instead of the government once again throwing good money after bad by once again bailing-out an SOE, namely the SAA. Rather use all of the bail-out money for the various SOE's to fund the much needed bigger budget for the SAPS for the very necessary and required better policing here in South Africa. As far as establishing an Intelligence Division of the police force - why is this required, what is the real reason for this? Surely the Intelligence Division or Agency falls under the military and it is required to help keep South Africa and us South African citizens safe and secure within South Africa from any untoward harm that may come from other countries! Community policing is extremely important and this also includes all of the privately-owned security companies/businesses in South Africa. It is very important for the SAPS, the privately-owned security companies/businesses and the public at large to collaborate with each other with regards to crime occurring within the communities. However, the SAPS must be prepared to be completely open and accepting about all of the information coming from the privately-owned security companies/businesses and the public at large and the SAPS must then be well prepared to act upon any information that is divulged to them that will lead to the SAPS catching-up with and arresting the perpetrators of crime as soon as possible. There's no doubt about it that South Africa needs much more and much better policing by well qualified, very trustworthy and reliable members of the South African police force for the sake of every single South African's safety, security and protection here in South Africa!

	2020-11-10 19:33:52	KwaZulu-Natal		Not fully	integrity testing of recruits	The draft bill provides for the setting up of the Intelligence Division of the Police Service in terms of the South African Police Service Act of 1995. I am assuming that this WAS a division that had existed previously, !! there are so many divisions within this police dept.. difficult to keep up.. but, the intelligence dept MUST have v v clear mandates, to NOT have police abuse their power in this dept.. but intelligence in required for things that are breaking this country apart, crime, drugs, human trafficking, intelligence is needed to break these utterly and permanently. NOT to sneak around political dissidents.. and create false stories around police doing their jobs. The draft bill also provides for integrity testing of recruits to the Police Service as well as lifestyle audits in respect of members of the Service and conflict of interest. What is meant by integrity testing?? surely there are tests that SHOULD be in place to check intelligence, psychological suitability, and NO POLICE RECORDS, non partisan nor beholden to anyone except the safety of the citizens of this country. That power plays are not made against certain groups of people, no bullies.. these should all be in place, against best INTERNATIONAL practice, for optimum policing. The proposed legislation also seeks to increase the penalty for certain crimes relating to the abuse of police equipment. why only police equipment? why not criminal and bought police? increase penalty for 1st degree crimes, with NO bail for those suspected for murder, rape.. etc.. additional: to have not only candidates suitable to serve the country, but to have ministers and politicians that are PROPERLY qualified for the job.. not the least unsuitable person... police ministers MUST MUST MUST be held directly accountable for our country's plunge into the abyss of crime we find ourselves in.. and to NOT deny an area of problems until PROPERLY investigated, with the wherewithall to understand data into information. otherwise the law is useless.	Anne

Unfortunately this draft policy is an ugly mixture between measures that make the police more accountable and measures that make them less so. This mixture is a poisoned cup. What we need is tighter restraint on the powers of law enforcement to restrict and infringe our human rights. These powers should be reduced across the board, and this policy reduces them in some ways while creating new pathways for the abuse of power.	Francis

	2020-11-03 07:21:08	Western Cape		Not fully	other	My biggest problem is that I heard they want to take away power from local municipalities and all be governed by one body. Firstly, the upper management of the Police cannot even govern their own people, The Police, currently but tuen they want more duties, unbelievable. Every region should be governed separately, as every region has individual problems and crime. Secondly, the police is so corrupt, why should we give them more power, so that they can intimidate more innocent citizens? Focus on correcting the current mistakes before you change the rules to make it easier for the already corrupt police to become more corrupt. I want my local government, to govern my local police. The only good suggestion is the integrity check, which I hope will include physical and mental checks. An extra intelligence bureau . . . Sounds like we are going into Nazi times here . . . A single Police service will be used as a political tool, as is the case at present - - - HOWEVER, the fact that "local authorities" are over stepping [with impunity] the limits of their authority by passing "by-laws" that duplicate national legislation, in order to generate REVENUE rather than control crime MUST BE ADDRESSED. 2..Municipal / Metro / Provincial law enforcement has NOT ADDRESSED THE CLIMBING collision rate, in favour of generating REVENUE. The AARTO Bill is an example of money replacing safety as a priority. 3..The training of ALL law enforcement personnel MUST BE ADDRESSED as a matter of urgency as they are presently considered as nothing more than state sponsored gangsters - - although there are MANY officers of integrity and HIGH MORAL values who are dedicated to profession. We have seen in the past just how brutal and corrupt many police officers are ... giving them even more power is not good for the public at all. In other countries police are looked up to; in this country everyone is terrified of them. My personal feelings are that (a) the entire police force as it stands, should be cleared out, corrupt and violent officers sent to prison and PROPERLY vetted, EXPERIENCED people employed in their stead and (b) suitably trained and responsible ex-policemen (and I don't mean from other countries such as China) are employed to train the new recruits. I think the whole area of training of the police force needs to be re-evaluated; they MUST learn that they are employed and paid by the PUBLIC, not any political power that happens to be governing at any time and they are there to HELP and SUPPORT the public. 	2020-10-16 10:29:28	Western Cape	No I do not	other	"The clause provides that deadly force may only be used if reasonably necessary and proportional in the circumstances and when there is a threat of death or serious bodily harm to the member of the Service or another person." - Considering the current obfuscation of what is considered "threat of death", since now there is no distinction between mortal harm and getting a cold, there must be more clarity on what "threat of death" is. "Moreover, the clause substitutes the reference to "Crime Intelligence Division of the Service" for a reference to "Intelligence Division of the Service". Police are there to investigate Crime. - Removing "Crime" from their Investigation confuses the purpose of the Investigating. "Clause 27 proposes to amend section 17L of the principal Act by substituting the reference to the "Independent Complaints Directorate" for a reference to the "Independent Police Investigative Directorate". " - Yet again, why are they just investigating, if there is no complaint that they are investigating. "Clause 30 proposes an amendment to section 18 of the principal Act in order to substitute community police forums and boards for community "policing" forums and boards" - There is a BIG difference between "community police" and "community policing"!!! You are making it legal to police a community, instead of providing a community with police. "Clause 32 proposes the amendment of section 24, by the insertion of a new paragraph (kA) in subsection (1), which empowers the Minister to make regulations, supplementing the Occupational Injuries and Diseases Act, 1993, in respect of injuries and diseases sustained or contracted by members in the course of their employment, or death as a result of such injury or disease." - Considering the lunacy we've witnessed with COVID, I think we can all have a long hard think about what is considered a "disease" before we start giving people power to make regulations. "Clause 62 proposes to amend section 65 of the principal Act to provide for a penalty of imprisonment for a period of five years, as opposed to a period of 12 months, for receipt or possession of certain property" - That is very vague... "Subsection (6) provides that the Crime Intelligence Division will continue as the Intelligence Division of the Service after the commencement of the envisaged Act. Subsection" - Yet again, an "Intelligence Division" could be something completely different if it is not Investigating a Crime. "Clause 81 provides for the insertion of Chapter 2A in the Civilian Secretariat for Police Service Act, which provides for the establishment and functioning of neighbourhood patrolling and neighbourhood watch associations, community policing forums, district, provincial and community policing boards and the National Community Policing Board." - Yet again, Policing is very different to Police. "Clause 84 proposes an amendment to the long title of the Civilian Secretariat for Police Service Act, 2011, to include the establishment and functions of neighbourhood patrolling and neighbourhood watch associations and community policing forums and boards to the objects of said that Act" - And again "community policing" means something very different to 'community police'".	Vicky

	2020-10-12 10:25:52	Western Cape		No I do not	other	The public have very little or no confidence in the police force because of all the criminal policemen who are more in number than the good honest hard working policeman. Look how they have killed one of the good officers who was about to put a stop to these criminal police operating in the police force. Police cannot be trusted and act in a biased way when dealing with different race groups. Look how much state property has been destroyed up until now with no arrests been made. This is total double standards which makes the police useless.
